Netherlands, South Holland, May 24, 2021 (IssueWire.com) - Rock music is a legendary genre that never goes out of style due to its universal rhythmic approach. Supremely talented one-man band I Panic has created a soundscape that is enriching the alternative rock musical form. The band is formed by Dutch singer and multi-instrumentalist, Marcel van Tetering, who has been using his brilliant creativity to create another masterpiece, 'Kill the Dog'. The track is a blend of classic rock rhythms and modern instrumentation that is perfectly reminiscent of the past. His brilliant singing has cast a spell over the audience soothing their minds. Armed with his dynamic storytelling ability, the prolific musician has established a sublime rock number that paints a vivid picture of the world around him.

Hailing from the Netherlands, the multi-talented musician has been attracted to music from a very young age. The genre that attracted him, in particular, is rock and alternative rock. He started playing different instruments quite early. His instrumental knowledge has given him leverage over his contemporaries. He has been inspired by iconic artists like Tom Waits, Cole Porter, Randy Newman, and Jacques Brel to David Bowie, Joe Jackson, Elvis Costello, and Fischer-Z. And he utilized their influences in his music. About his music, he says, 'A good song doesn't care whether it's played by a rock band, just on a single guitar, or with a full orchestra. The song remains..... I Panic is the, probably lifelong, search to create such a song. To tell a story, express a feeling, or both...'

The prolific singer-songwriter Marcel van Tetering is taking his exceptional soundscape to the next level singlehandedly.
